PERSONALS.

Mrs. W. E. Lemmon will leave this evening for San Francisco, and there will meet Dr. and Mrs. Graham of Los Angeles. Together they will sail for Honolulu, where Mrs. Lemmon will spend some time for her health.—Reno (Nev.) Gazette.James Neill, the actor manager, is forming a company of twenty here for a theatrical tour, which will begin at San Francisco next October and last three years. Neill plans to charter a ship and play at Honolulu and the seaboard cities of China, Japan, India, Australia and South America. The ship will be fitted up in a homelike manner for this novel cruise, and Mrs. Neill will be chaperon.—New York Letter.Another April wedding which will prove of general interest will take place at the Piedmont home of George S.
Fisk, when his daughter, Miss Lillian Fisk, will become the bride of Allen Jaeger. Mr. Jaeger, who has recently come here from Honolulu, is to be congratulated on having won the heart of Miss Fisk, whose popularity across the bay is unquestioned. She is of the fairest blonde type and has marked musical talent.—San Francisco Bulletin.The golden anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Young, which was celebrated yesterday at their home in Honolulu, is of interest to a wide circle of acquaintances whom the family enjoy in the bay cities, where they lived for a number of years. The Youngs established themselves in Rose Crest, which since has passed into the hands of the William G. Henshaw, where they entertained lavishly. Several years ago they went to the Islands to make their permanent home, but have kept up a number of their closer friendships in California. The fiftieth wedding celebration was made particularly delightful by the presence of the several daughters at the Young family gathering for the notable occasion in a happy reunion.—San Francisco Call.

STRONG PLAY AT THE ORPHEUM

So resource were the scenic effects presented in "The Operator" at the Orpheum last night that the audience lost into applause, although the masterly setting of Leo Cooper and Miss Van Hagen called for equally enthusiastic demonstrations. Mr. Cooper presented the dramatic and powerful playlet, which will run for the rest of the week. His acting is at all times spirited and forceful, never overdrawn, and his portrayal of the overworked and almost insane telegraph operator could not be improved upon. Miss Van Hagen, as his wife, almost runs the gamut of human emotion and is given splendid opportunities. In the scene where she pleads for her husband to take her and the baby's lives before his own she is splendid and shares the honors of the evening with Mr. Cooper.
The action of the playlet never drags, while the climax relieves the tension.
"The Operator" is a sketch that is well worth seeing. The accompaniment to the playlet—a train in full speed, the whistle, the telegraph key working, etc., —are all realistic, although no train is visible.
